

Do you know where the largest "active" super volcano is located in the continental United States? It might surprise you to know it is located in Yellowstone National Park. If you walk around the park you might not notice it though you would be aware of its presence all around you seen in the hot springs and mud pits throughout the park. So why would you not notice it? It's so big that you simply cannot see it. The Yellowstone super volcano is so large that its caldera can only be seen from space. Yellowstone National Park is not just the location of the volcano, it is the volcano, and if it erupts we will say good-bye to the earth as we know it. Read more »

[Sights and Sounds Information, Answers & Reviews Adventure Science & Nature Supervolcano \[DVD\]](#)

Posted by Keith C. on Nov 1, 2011 Keith C.'s blog Add new comment

Buck

Buck is a documentary about legendary horse trainer Dan "Buck" Brannaman, the modern day horse whisperer and inspiration for both the book and film alike. His horsemanship skills are legendary because he can train a horse to do just about anything in nearly ten minutes without touching the horse.

Read more »

[Sights and Sounds Information, Answers & Reviews Buck \[videorecording\] Documentary Films Westerns](#)

Posted by Burl C. on Oct 24, 2011 Burl C.'s blog Add new comment

Nature: A Murder of Crows

You can always count on the PBS Nature series to be interesting and have beautiful videography. But I was especially captivated when I recently watched A Murder of Crows. It didn't sound that interesting- a documentary about crows, but when I read the description of crows as "apes with feathers" I was intrigued. I had no idea how intelligent these birds are.

Read more »

[Sights and Sounds Information, Answers & Reviews Animals Documentary Films Nature. A murder of crows \[videorecording\]](#)

Posted by Elizabeth G. on Oct 22, 2011 Elizabeth G.'s blog Add new comment

New Movie Monday Quick Tip.

On the second Monday of every month, a new release will be shown at the main library's auditorium. Due to copyright restrictions we can not "publish" or "advertise" the name of the movie too far ahead of showing it. You can however use the library's "calendar of events" link on the main page to locate the date of the movie and send yourself an e-reminder of the event. See an example here: Read more »

Sights and Sounds Information, Answers & Reviews New Movie Monday

Posted by Burl C. on Oct 18, 2011 Burl C.'s blog Add new comment

Nowhere Boy

Confession time -- I grew up with The Beatles. They hit the music scene in the U.S. in 1964 when I was 9 years old. I was enthralled. From that time on, I really wanted to play guitar and drums. Many books and movies have been written and made about the early days of The Beatles. Nowhere Boy could have been just another in the bunch. Read more »

[Sights and Sounds Information, Answers & Reviews Biography Drama Movies Nowhere boy \[videorecording\]](#)

Posted by Keith C. on Oct 10, 2011 Keith C.'s blog Add new comment

A Thousand Clowns

A Thousand Clowns has long been at the top of my favorite movie list. Based on the play by Herb Gardner it is the story of Murray Burns, a former television writer for a local Children's show and his nephew "Nick." There is a reason for the quotes around Nick's name which becomes apparent as you watch the movie. Murray has been unemployed by choice for a considerable length of time because he wants to have fun in life. His philosophy can be summed up by the following exchange between Murray and Nick at the beginning of the film,

Murray: "Nick, you are about to see a horrible thing."

Nick: "What's that Murray?"

Murray: "People going to Work." Read more »

[Sights and Sounds Information, Answers & Reviews A thousand clowns \[videorecording\]](#)

Comedy Family Relationships Humor

Posted by Keith C. on Oct 4, 2011 Keith C.'s blog Add new comment

Post Mortem: The death investigation crisis in America.

Everything is not what it seems. I guess I watch too much tv. I've always been under the impression that forensic investigations and death investigations were done in a highly scientific and professional manner. As it turns out, the reality is that throughout most of America the position of Coroner is an elected position. This means that the person doing the investigation could have little to no experience at all which could then lead to a Read more »

[Sights and Sounds Information, Answers & Reviews Documentary Films Post mortem \[videorecording\] : the death investigation crisis in America Science](#)

Posted by Burl C. on Sep 27, 2011 Burl C.'s blog Add new comment

The Housemaid (2010)

Currently I'm a little in love with pretty much anything coming out of South Korea. Whether it's Thirst, The Host, Oldboy, or 3-Iron, I love pretty much everything I see. South Korean directors manage to make some of the most deliciously weird movies I've seen. The latest batch of weirdness comes courtesy of The Housemaid, the latest from Sang-soo Im. Read more »

[Sights and Sounds Information, Answers & Reviews Foreign Language Films The housemaid \[videorecording\] Thriller & Suspense](#)

Posted by Burl C. on Sep 21, 2011 Burl C.'s blog Add new comment

« first? previous

? 7 8 9 10

11 12 13 14 15

? next ? last »
