Why did you decide to read this book? Did a friend suggest it? Did it have an interesting cover?:

At first it was just a school assignment, but now I'm reading it again over the summer to understand it better. And I must say, it is really hard to get me to like a book let alone read, so that's definitely saying something. I absolutely despise reading, but this book is one of the very few exceptions.

What is the story about?/What happened in the story?:

This book is about a society with no color, music, or feelings. To do this they must take their daily medicine. Every year a group of children celebrates their "birthdays". These are called the ones, twos, or whatever age your turning. But when Jonas is not called up, he finds out he has been picked for the receiver. The Giver must give him the memories to bare for the town.

Why did you like this story? or Why did you not like this story?:

It was so intriguing with detail on every new memory Jonas receives.

Other thoughts or feelings about this story? Anything else to add?:

nope...

Write a review of the book, including plot points, if you wish:

Jonas lives in a community where everyone is the same, does the same things, and no one has any choices. But during The Ceremony of the Twelves Jonas finds out he is not like everyone else. He is chosen to be The Receiver-a job like no other-that requires secrecy and emotions Jonas has never experienced before. Will he be able to handle it?
