

Poetry in Your Pocket Day

Poetry in your Pocket Day

April is National Poetry Month, and tomorrow is "Poem in your Pocket Day." Here's what the sponsoring organization Poets.org says about it:

"Select a poem, carry it with you, and share it with others throughout the day. You can also share your selection on Twitter by using the hashtag #pocketpoem." One unique way is to switch to old technology--remember the telephone?--and call a friend and read a poem to him or her. What a great way to share this form of oral literature.

Please feel free to scan our large collection of contemporary poetry and classics. American poetry can be found between 811-812 in our stacks, British, between 821-822. If you want to explore poetry from other languages, try 831--German, 841--French, etc. Haiku can be found in the 895s. (They squeezed poetry from many cultures in the 890s including Russian, Japanese, Chinese and Inuit.) Also, you can find a large and diverse selection at Poets.org.

I'll get a head-start on the day by sharing one my favorite spring poems with you from Complete Poems: 1904-1962 by e.e. cummings. His love for nature and humanity shines through all his poems.

[in Just-]

By e. e. cummings 1894--1962
in Just-
spring when the world is mud-luscious the little lame balloonman
whistles far and wee
and eddieandbill come running from marbles and piracies and it's spring
when the world is puddle-wonderful the queer
old balloonman whistles far and wee
and bettyandisbel come dancing from hop-sotch and jump-rope and it's spring
and
the

goat-footed
balloonMan whistles
far
and wee

—

Posted by Dory L. on April 17, 2013

Blogs:

For the Love of Reading

Information, Answers & Reviews

Reviews Subjects:

Poetry

Reviews Titles:

Poetry in Your Pocket Day
